My son STEPHEN MICHALESKI gave me a map of 1874 BROOKLYN.
This map can be found on AMAZON.com. The portion of GREENPOINT is shown here.
The entire map has been kept intact for future study.
Here are some points I have noticed from the map.

BUSHWICK INLET (previously BUSHWICK CREEK) had already been filled by 1874.  Note 1
VAN COTT AVENUE would become DRIGGS AVENUE.
OAK STREET went right down to the East River.
From NEWTOWN CREEK to GREEN POINT AVENUE one main street had been called UNION PLACE , later UNION AVENUE.  Note 2
From GREENPOINT AVENUE to BAYARD STREET this same main street had been called ORCHARD STREET.
St. Anthony’s Church , erected in 1873, was on this ORCHARD STREET.  Note 3
UNION PLACE, later UNION AVENUE and ORCHARD STREET in GREENPOINT and EWEN STREET in WILLIAMSBURG would become MANHATTAN AVENUE, VAN PELT Avenue and JANE Street no longer exist.
OAKLAND STREET existed but there was no bridge at the end of it.
DOBBIN STREET ran into OAK STREET.
There was no CLIFFORD PLACE.
There was no WYTHE AVENUE.
Looking along the waterfront at NEWTOWN CREEK and the EAST RIVER:
   EVE, DICK, ANN, BELL, PINK, BLUE and BAY Streets no longer exist.
   BAY Street connected into WEST Street.
Looking along PAIDGE AVENUE:
   PEQUOD, CONCORD, SETAUKET, (looks like BRAJIT) and DUCK Streets no longer exist.
Looking nearer to Meeker Ave. and Newtown Creek:
   LAKE, POLLOCK, FRONT, WRIGHT, MORSE, THOMAS and TOWNSEND Streets
   no longer exist.
Green Point in 1874 was two words not as GREENPOINT is today.  Note 4.
There were many ferries running from Greenpoint. The last one stopped in the mid 1930’s
There was transportation ending at ORCHARD STREET and VAN COTT AVENUE.

Notes:
1. In earlier times BUSHWICK INLET extended to about where Driggs Ave & Humboldt street meet today.
2. The corner building at Kent Street and Manhattan Avenue has the engraving UNION AV.
3. Reference: BROOKLYN EAGLE. June 14, 1875. See my volume 4 for the complete article.
4. The GREEN POINT SAVINGS BANK started on Franklin Street and Oak Street in 1869.
   After several moves the bank was erected in 1908 on Manhattan Avenue and Calyer Street.
   Engraved at the top it is GREEN POINT SAVINGS BANK.
   The YMCA on Meeker and Lorimer Street erected 1906 used the GREENPOINT spelling.
